

Harvey Milk (May 22, 1930 - November 27, 1978) was one of the first openly-gay politicians to be elected. He served on the San Francisco Board of Supervisors and was one of the most out-spoken advocates of LGBTQIA+ rights, helping to pass laws to ban discrimination based on sexual orientation.